

National Summit for Educational Equity

40
years of

Arlington, Virginia, April 28–May 2, 2019

INNOVATION, INSPIRATION, and INFLUENCE.

The National Alliance for Partnerships in Equity (NAPE) is accepting proposals until December 14, 2018, for its annual National Summit for Educational Equity. The Summit takes place April 28-May 2, 2019, at the Hilton Crystal City in Arlington, VA.

This year's theme is Innovation, Inspiration and Influence.

ABOUT THE SUMMIT

The globalization of the American economy has increased the need for a workforce prepared for new and emerging high-skill, high-wage, and in demand occupations. Preparing every student to be college and career ready and ensuring successful postsecondary credential, certificate, or degree attainment is critical to meeting the current skills gap, especially in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) and career and technical education (CTE) fields. The current economic climate of the nation illustrates that many Americans are struggling to gain the necessary skills to enter high-skill, high-wage employment. For those facing multiple barriers to education and training—such as single parents, low-income individuals, individuals with disabilities, and English language learners—the path to economic security is proving to be ever more challenging.

This national conference focuses on access, equity, and diversity in education with a particular emphasis on CTE, STEM education, and workforce development. By building the capacity, knowledge, and skills of state education administrators and local educators, the Summit brings together the most current researchers and practitioners in educational equity to share best practices and to build a learning community of professionals. The conference offers strands of workshops that engage participants in learning about new research, tools, and strategies for improving policies and practices to close achievement, participation, and interest gaps.

To address these realities in a meaningful and effective manner, NAPE is requesting proposals for the 2019 Summit that align to any of the five strands.

STRANDS

Best practices for equitable learning environments:

Topics may include racial equity, gender equity, cultural competence, disability services, support services for students with disabilities or other populations with high needs, transition to postsecondary services, open-education resources, or financial supports for low-income students.

Increasing access and equity in CTE and STEM:

Topics may include innovative programs, increasing student access and success, engaging underrepresented populations, or dual/concurrent enrollment.

Building a diverse workforce:

Topics may include employer engagement, work-based learning, apprenticeship, badging, certifications, internships, competency-based education, credit for prior learning, or transition to employment services for students with disabilities.

Equitable leadership practices:

Topics may include leading with equity in mind, leading institutional change, or leading equitable environments.

Public Policy—Supporting equity and education:

Topics may include: local policies proven to close equity gaps; local, state, and/or national collaborations impacting educational equity policy; advocacy strategies; or understanding equity policies in ESSA, IDEA, WIOA, Perkins V, TANF, or civil rights laws.

AUDIENCE

This conference is designed for educators, workforce development professionals, and advocates dedicated to removing barriers to equitable opportunity in education and the workforce. Proposals should be drafted to address the following audiences: secondary/postsecondary educators, career and technical education and workforce development professionals, researchers, administrators, counselors, data specialists, business representatives, and/or nonprofit staff.
